"They (the government) want to steal our jobs away," said Nick Terrell, 36, a pipe-fitter at the plant, which makes oilfield supplies for British Petroleum. Brian Fitzsimmons, who owns Fitzsimmons Welding, said equipment that had cost him more than $50,000 and that was worth $100,000 or more was being auctioned off by West Virginia Business Bidders. The auction will take place in three locations: six in Charleston; two in Parkersburg, and one each in Clarksburg and Bridgeport. Terrell said his company, of which he's been the chief machinist for the last 27 years, will lose as much as $1,000 for each truck it bid on. "They're going to build foreign-made stuff," Terrell said of other companies in the U.S. "And we're (company owners) not going to be 648931e174
