Redirecting stdout in multiple threads in python I am running some python code in multiple threads and would like to 'capture' stdout for each thread. I am at a loss as to where to start. Most of the documentation I find refers to threads and not starting 'child' processes. What I have so far:

import threading
import subprocess
class Printf():
    def __init__(self):
        self.pipe = subprocess.Popen(["cat",
            "/path/to/file.txt"], stdout=subprocess.PIPE)
    def run(self):
        self.pipe.communicate()
def main():
    printf = Printf()
    t1 = threading.Thread(target=printf.run)
    t2 = threading.Thread(target=printf.run)
    t1.start()
    t2.start()
The code runs fine
and the.communicate() opens

the file - however is there a way to capture the output of stdout in a queue/something like this?
